

THISTLE AND THORN 2

MAY 1965

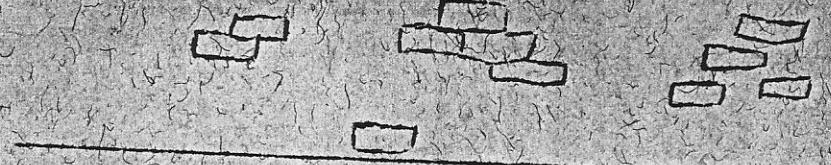

THISTLE

AND

THORN

2

JPN

an interview with

ANDRE NORTON

conducted by

TIM EKLUND

Before the interview proper we feel that a short biographical sketch of Miss Norton is in order. She was born (and still resides) in Cleveland of Adalbert and Daisy Norton, being the younger of two daughters. It is to be regretted that Miss Norton was unable to obtain a formal college education. In 1930 she started attending a school where she took a course in journalism, and began helping with the school paper, Spotlight, where she learned the fundamentals of her trade.

She was at one time a children's librarian in a Cleveland library, and once worked for the Library of Congress.

It is also much to be regretted that ill health strictly limits her working time, usually about three or four hours a day.

She is a foster mother and helps to support two small girls—one on an Apache Arizona reservation; the other a Chinese girl in Hong Kong.

Miss Norton's personality is exceptionally rich in the qualities of kindness. Also she has wit and a real zest for living. She is noted for her genuine charm and vitality.

—Tim Eklund

THE INTERVIEW (all answers are quoted verbatim)

Tim: I've noticed that none of your books has ever been published by the book club. Why for is this?

Andre: My books are not book club material because they are classed as teen age (except for the Witch World series).

Tim: Have you ever tried collaboration, other than with Grace Hogarth and the mystery Murder For Sale?

Andre: Collaboration is a tricky business—I have tried it twice, both times with writers of mystery stories, only to discover that it does not work out for me. It requires two people who think alike and can work "well meshed"—writers are usually too individualistic to fit well together.

Tim: Doesn't it ever irritate you to have a publisher retitle a work, as was done with Quest for Kolder?

Andre: Well—it is sometimes most irritating when a publisher alters it—as had happened several times with mine at Ace—I still think the titles I gave the mss.

concerned were better.

Tim: We all have our favorite authors. Who are yours?

Andre: Beam Piper, Poul Anderson, Keith Laumer, Eric Frank Russell rank very high with me, as do Leigh Brackett and Marion Zimmer Bradley for fantasy sword-and-sorcery things. I have all of the Conan material—Howard has an excellent technique with action—unfortunately he tends to repeat himself in plot lines—but he can evoke very eerie backgrounds.

Tim: What do you think of the Ace cover art?

Andre: A writer has nothing to say about who illustrates a book—the artist is always selected by the publisher—unless, of course, the writer is his own illustrator. I have found most of the Ace covers very attractive.

Tim: Did you have to do much background reading for your books like Witch World Star Gate, etc.?

Andre: All of these books demand a lot of research—for the Witch World series I have to delve deep into Celtic history and lore, etc.

Tim: Do you ever make carbon copies of your manuscripts? If so, are any for sale?

Andre: The carbon copies of my ms. lately have been going to the various con committees for auction. No, I'm wrong—the originals do—the carbons are used by the publishers for the artists and are not usually returned to me.

Tim: There is speculation that the '65 worldcon will be held in London. If so, do you think that there is any chance of your attending?

Andre: No. I would not be going to England next year—much as I would like to, since I have quite a few friends among writers and publishers over there—but since health does not even allow me to go down town in Cleveland, I can't very well set off for the other side of the world. I do my traveling via books and the tv.

Tim: What happened to your position with Gnome Press?

Andre: Gnome Press ran into financial difficulties, as small presses have the unfortunate habit of doing. I severed all connections with them some time ago.

Tim: Many fans consider your novel Star Men's Son - 2250 A.D. to be one, if not the, best after-the-war story to be written in a long time. Any comments on this type of literature? Do you have a favorite?

Andre: My favorite after-the-war story is Alas Babylon—which seems to me much more close to actual human reaction to such catastrophe than On the Beach—people who sit down and wait for death as did the characters in the latter work, do not appear to have much of the energy and spirit inborn in our species. A handful of them would have retreated to the Antarctic and established an under-the-ice base—with the resources of a whole continent to draw from they were a very spineless lot.

Tim: I think that of all your stories, perhaps The Star Rangers is my favorite.

Is there any chance of a sequel?

Andre: There was no point left in Star Rangers really to hold over into any other tale—we can believe that the Rangers and their companions established a base somewhere in the South and instigated a new civilization with the mixture of peoples. It would be centuries before they might venture into space again. Perhaps some descendants of theirs discovered a last stored ship someday in the take-off city and went out on a new voyage of discovery--there could be a germ of story in that.

Tim: I notice that you live only a stone's throw from Mr. and Mrs. (Leigh Brackett) Edmond Hamilton. Have you ever visited them?

Andre: Yes, I have visited the Hamiltons a couple of times— they live in a very charming old Western Reserve farmhouse which they have remodeled— with the upstairs made into a huge library with the most fascinating collection of books! However, since Leigh Brackett writes for the movies now they have taken to commuting between Kinsman and Los Angeles and are not in Ohio too much anymore. I have not seen them for four years or more.

Tim: Are you ever satisfied with your work?

Andre: No real writer is ever satisfied with any piece of work—that is the sign of the amateur. The finished product is never the bright and shiny thing you have in your mind— much to your sorrow. Sometimes you will produce a scene which comes close to what you wanted— but it never reaches your private standards. And this is very healthy for it is what keeps you always striving to better your own work.

Tim: Does the weather ever handicap your work?

Andre: The sweltering heat which has been with us now for over a week takes all the energy out of one. I am so very glad that I finished the book before this closed down on us, since to think constructively under this blanket is a task I would hate to face. But must start research for the new one by next Sunday and only hope that the weather clears— though there seems to be little prospect of that so far.

Tim: Thank you, Miss Norton.

ANDRE NORTON BIBLIOGRAPHY

Great appreciation is expressed to Len Collins. Much of the information here included was gleaned from his "The World of Andre Norton" published in the February 1964 issue of Thru the Haze edited and published by Art Hayes. --T.E.

(* denotes "reprinted by")

The Prince Commands - Appleton Century- 1934, 1936 - 269 pp.
* (Varvelun - Danish ed.) Gylden Nal - 1937

The Ralestone Luck - Appleton Century - 1938, 1941 - 296 pp.
* Ryerson

Follow the Drum - Penn - 1942 - 312 pp.
* McClelland

The Sword is Drawn - Houghton Mifflin - 1944 - 178 pp.
*T. Allen, 1946, and Oxford, 1947
(Won award from Dutch government)

Rogue Reynard - Houghton Mifflin - 1947 - 295 pp.
* Dutch edition

The People of the Crater - Fantasy Book #1 - 1947 - short story -
(as Andrew North)

Scarface - Harcourt - 1949 - 246 pp.
* Pocket-Coment, 1949, Mothuen 1950

The Gifts of Asti - Fantasy Book #3 - 1948 - novelet
(as Andrew North)

Sword in Sheath - Harcourt - 1949 - 246 pp.
* Staples, and Viking as Island of the Lost

Huon of the Horn - Harcourt - 1951 - 208 pp.
* McLeod 1951, Ace 1963

Bullard of the Space Patrol (editor) - World - 1951, 1955 - 206 pp.
(collection of Malcolm Jameson)

Starman's Son -2250 A.D. - Harcourt - 1952 - 248 pp.
* Ace 1954, 1962 as Daybreak - 2250 A.D.

Space Service (editor) World - 1953 - 277 pp. - anthology

All Cats Are Grey - Fantastic Universe - Aug./Sept. 1953 - novelet

The Star Rangers - Harcourt - 1953 - 280 pp.
* McLeod, 1953. Ace, as The Last Planet 1955, 1962

Space Pioneers (editor) - World - 1954 - 294 pp. - anthology

Mouse Trap - F & SF - June 1954 - short story

At Sword's Point - Harcourt - 1954 - 279 pp.

Murder for Sale (with Grace Hogarth) - Hammond Hammond - 1954

The Stars Are Ours! - World - 1954 - 237 pp.
* Ace 1955, 1963. German ed. - two vol. Ad Astra and Terra,
Utopia Press. Italian ed. Addio Alla Terra - Urania

Yankee Privateer - World - 1955 - 300 pp.

Sargasso of Space - Gnome Press - 1955 - 185 pp.
* German book club ed. - Utopia Press. French ed. Ace 1957, 1964.

Star Guard - Harcourt - 1955 - 247 pp.
* Ace 1957, 1961. German ed. - Utopia Press, Die Rebellen

Space Police (editor) - World - 1956 - 192 pp.

Plague Ship - Gnome Press - 1956 - 192 pp.
*Ace, 1959, 1964. German ed. Gefährliche Landung, Utopia Press.
Also French edition.

Crossroads of Time - Ace, 1956, 1962. - 196 pp.
*German ed.

Sea Siege - Harcourt - 1957 - 216 pp.
*Longmans 1957. Ace, 1962.

Stand to Horse - Harcourt - 1957 - 242 pp.

Star Born - World - 1957 - 212 pp.
*Nelson, Foster, 1957. Ace 1958, 1963.

Star Gate - Harcourt - 1958 - 192 pp.
*Longmans 1958. Ace, 1963.

The Time Traders - World - 1958 - 219 pp.
*Ace 1960, 1963.

The Beast Master - Harcourt - 1959 - 192 pp.
*Longmans 1959. Ace 1961.

Galactic Derelict - World - 1959 - 224 pp.
*Ace 1961. Sequel to The Time Traders.

Voodoo Planet - Ace - 1959 - 78 pp.

The Secret of the Lost Race - Ace 1959 - 132 pp.
*German edition: Das Geheimnis der Verlorenen. Utopia Press.

Storm over Warlock - World 1960 - 251 pp.
*Ace 1961.

The Sioux Spaceman - Ace 1960 - 133 pp.
*German edition: Die Sklaven von Klor.

Shadow Hawk - Harcourt 1960 - 237 pp.
*Ace 1964.

Ride Proud, Rebel! - World 1961 - 225 pp.

Star Hunter - Ace 1961 - 98 pp. With The Beast Master.

Catscapes - Harcourt 1961 - ??? pp.
*Nelson, Foster 1961. Gollancz 1962. Ace 1962.

Rebel Spurs - World - 1962 - 224 pp.
*Nelson, Foster.

Eve of the Monster - Ace 1962 - 80 pp. With Sea Siege.

The Defiant Agents - World 1962 - 224 pp.
*Nelson, Foster. 1962. Ace 1963. Sequel to Galactic Derelict.

Lord of Thunder - Harcourt 1962 - 192 pp.
* Ace 1963 Sequel to The Beast Master.

Witch World - Ace 1963 - 222 pp.

Key out of Time - World 1963 - 224 pp.
* Ace 1964. Sequel to The Defiant Agents.

Judgement on Janus - Harcourt 1964 -
* Ace 1964. Sequel to Catseye.

Web of the Witch World - Ace 1964 - 192 pp. Sequel to Witch World.

Ordeal in Otherwhere - 1964

Night of the Masks - 1964

Three against Witch World - 1965

A VISITATION by TIM EKLUND

When I was very small I had a dream. I dreamed of a strange being from a star. He came with peace, and love, and understanding in his heart.

He came with only joy and happiness; into a troubled world he brought a hope.

He saw evil, and did not understand. He saw hate, and did not understand. He saw jealousy, and did not understand.

But if he did not understand the smallness of man, man equally did not understand him. They came one day with dogs and guns, to hunt him.

I remember the Star-Being's death most clearly of all. The men had tracked to a small bubbling stream. The dogs paced restlessly on the lease. The men let them loose. The beasts advanced slowly, cautiously. Yet they moved without me. They sniffed, and licked the being's "hands", and were happy.

The men waited a few moments. A rifle was raised. It spat fire and lead. A jagged hole appeared in the being's shoulder. He looked at it blankly, still not standing.

The rifle spoke a second time and a trickle of blood ran down the being's face. He rocked gently.

The rifle thundered yet again, and this time its voice was echoed by others. They seemed to flame forever, and then were silent.

The Star-Being lay crumpled on the forest floor, his face, head, and body punctured, blood welling freely.

Far from home, on an alien planet of hate, he died.

The hunters looked for many minutes, and then left, leaving him to the eaters.

I woke then, and cried all that night.

Note: Miss Norton wishes to say, "My publishers have been most encouraging and understanding, and I appreciate very much their assistance and kindness!" Since my interview was stenciled, these books by Andre are planned. Three Against Witch World (May, Ace); X Factor (Harcourt, Fall); Quest Crosstime (Viking, Fall); Magic (World, Fall). — Tim Eklund